Gentleman!

My Inquiry may refer to some other Part of Public-building, but as they are unknown to me, I beg to forword same to the right Place.

I wish to know the Value of old Coins, — and were same could be exchanged to their present Value.

Being attacted be a newspaper inquiry of the Value of a dime from 1894, the Answer was: 50 to 100 Dollars at present.
I happen to have one of 95 and wonder if his Value is much less. I looked for Exchanges in Atlantic City but without Result.

Respectfully

Miss H. Krisch

Dear Madam:

Your letter of October 5th to the American Museum of Natural History has been referred to me for reply.

Your dime of 1895 has no premium. There is one variety of dime of 1894 that is rare, but that in no way affects any other dime.

Yours very truly,
